

Robert Deege, Vice President of Business & Creative Affairs.

As a principal and co-founder of Indomitable, Deege oversees all business affairs, manages the staff, and heads up development.

Before IE, Rob worked as a Production and Finance Contractor for Blowtorch Entertainment alongside the heads of Development, Finance, Digital Content, and Theatrical Distribution in their endeavors to procure financing, structure distribution and flesh out the development slate.

Previously at Mind & Media, Inc, Deege produced and directed award-winning documentaries and training films for clients such as The National Guard and The Pentagon Force Protection Agency. The film “Basic Combat Training”, an innovative edgy depiction of boot camp took the highest overall honor in the Department of Defense – “Best Production of the Year” for 2005.

Before that, as a Producer at Discovery Communications, Rob produced, directed, edited and wrote for shows on Travel Channel, Discovery, TLC, Science Channel, Discovery HD Theater, Discovery Health, and Animal Planet. Deege’s 15-plus years of production experience began at Cerebellum Corporation, first as an editor/supervising editor and then director of over 20 feature length videos that were a blend of narrative, comedy, and educational.

As a Filmmaker, Deege directed the short film “Sobering” which played in several festivals and garnered awards for both screenplay and film, and produced several other short films. Deege also edited the award-winning feature film “Standalone”, which was picked up for digital distribution by Cinetic Media.

Rob has a BS in Statistics and Economics from Virginia Tech, is AVID certified in editing, and has trained as a director under Judith Weston.
